Saving Face

by Barbara Barton Sloane

“Come spring and summer, we all want a bit of that sunlight sparkle, and although sunshine is essential for health and wellbeing, it is certainly a hazard for the skin. More important than the perfect tan is proper skin protection. Check out a few of the new and innovative beauty products that will keep your face looking fresh rather than fried during the sun-shiny days to come...

A new line to enter the cosmetic arena is De La Terre Skincare. The name, translated, means “of the earth” and all of the line’s products feature specially selected raw components which are organic and/or wild-crafted, representing the ultimate union of botanical and nutritional natural ingredients for the skin. The line’s Sun Diffuser is spot-on protection for the coming season. With its unique, innovative elements literally derived from the earth, such as Rose Hips, Calendula, Frankincense, Red Raspberry, and Rosemary to name a few, Sun Diffuser’s claim is something new under the sun. The product allows the skin to harness the sun’s health benefits while reducing long-term damage. It also inhibits hyper-pigmentation, collagen breakdown and cell damage.
